

China's CCC Mark

Let G&M Compliance support your CCC Mark requirement for your products!

CCC stands for China Compulsory Certification.

The government of China has a mandatory Safety/EMC licensing system. This system, implemented on May 1, 2002, requires manufacturers in over 100 product categories to obtain the CCC Mark before exporting or selling into the Chinese market. This approval impacts many U.S. exporters across a wide range of manufacturing sectors. Products not meeting CCC requirements may be held at the border and are subject to other penalties by Chinese Customs Officials.

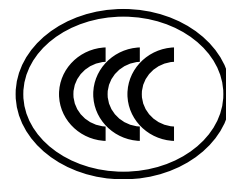

Our team in Beijing will ensure you have direct access to the most efficient CCC certification service available. Since 2004, G&M has established strong relationships with CQC-TS (China Quality Center - Testing Services) and CCAP (China Certification Centre for Automotive Products). We support manufacturers through the entire certification process.

We work with you to:

- Determine whether your product requires the CCC Mark
- Provide up-to-date information pertaining to regulations and procedures
- Plan testing and application processes
- Submit test samples, track, follow-up and communicate with relevant governmental agencies
- Translate and review all documents (including manuals & user instructions)
- Set up the Initial Plant Inspection (IPI) – to be conducted by the CQC or UL
- Complete your project on schedule

There are four major steps in the CCC Mark application process:

1. Application. Submission of an application and supporting materials. This includes user guides, CB reports, EMC reports, regulatory labels, and other information.
2. Type Testing. A CNCA-designated test laboratory in China will test your product samples.
3. Evaluation. Review of certification results and approval (or failure and retesting).
4. Factory Inspection. Manufacturing facilities for the product will have to go through an Initial Plant Inspection (IPI) and will be re-inspected by Chinese officials every 12-18 months.
